Gone are the days of schlepping to dreary doctor's offices. One Medical Group, with their tasteful designs and unique business model, is redefining the typical doctor visit. Fisher has built several of their offices on the East and West coasts, including this one located in a former industrial space in New York City's historic Meatpacking District. Because this office is located in a landmark building, it required approval by the New York Landmarks Conservancy. While the office retained much of its charm such as original brick piers, wood beams and columns, and a two story atrium and skylight, it was updated with high end fixtures and finishes.
